Concept

Unveiling the Silent Radiance is a women's evening wear collection that explores the duality between visibility and invisibility, echoing the symbolic meanings of the peacock and peahen birds in Mauritian Hindu culture.

Rooted from my philosophy, fashion is a form of cultural cartography, where it maps who we are, carrying memory and identity. Draped in radiant hues of teal, emerald and contrasted with earthy tones, each garment designs redefine strength and empowerment, merging tradition with contemporary luxury.

UNVEILING THE SILENT
RADIANCE

My inspiration comes from the peacock (male bird) and from the peahen (female bird). They are both symbolic in my culture, Mauritian Hindu heritage. The peacock bird is associated with purity, prosperity and divinity. Its vibrant colors and unique eye-shaped feathers, also called the ocelli, reflect the aspects of visibility and recognition. These elements inspired me to use lustrous fabrics and intricate, shiny embellishments, reflecting the symbolic significance of the peacock bird.

The peahen bird is characterized by its earthy tones, subtle elegance and nurturing role. It symbolizes resilience and strength. The peahen is often overlooked despite its protective characteristics and beauty. This contrast and duality between the peacock and peahen is at the core of my collection, it demonstrates the balance between visibility and the quiet power that sustains it.

The peacock and peahen birds act as metaphors to reinterpret the complexity of how some identities and forms of beauty are made visible in society while others remain hidden or undervalued. By connecting these symbolic roles, my collection will reflect the statement as to who gets to be seen, celebrated or remembered in both the society and cultural narratives.
